About us

AND Academy is a design upskilling venture launched by the Indian Institute of Art and Design (IIAD), a leading design school in India established in collaboration with Kingston School of Art, London. Backed by a decade of design education experience, we make professional design courses more accessible for graduates and working professionals across industries who aim to kickstart or advance their design careers. Our new-age hybrid learning model includes industry internships, global mentorships, advanced networking and industry-relevant skill training. These live and interactive programmes are designed to steer away from traditional learning models by optimising the learner's accessibility and convenience while guiding them towards a better future in the design industry.
